

2018/11/19 - Scribbles

I added all my scribbles on the site here. This is my usual process. I just start writing random thoughts until something clicks. Then I ask myself questions like what's the world like? Who are the characters? What are the relationships between the characters? Why do they like or hate each other? and so on. Then I answer these questions. Out of these random ideas I try to write a 10K foot view of the story, then I keep iterating through the story adding more details in each iteration. Currently, I'm outlining the episodes. After this, I'll do another pass and refine and add more details, hidden themes, re-write some of the episodes, etc.